PR9.NET October 04, 2004 - Frisco, Texas – Enterprise Messaging Communications Corporation (EMCom), a leader in messaging implementations and migrations, today announced that it has partnered with Sophos, a world leader in anti-virus and anti-spam solutions for businesses, to provide dependable network protection to its customers.

With well over 25 million users already benefiting from its products and first-class 24x7x365 support, Sophos has established a reputation as a trusted provider of industrial strength virus and spam protection. Over the last three years, Sophos has significantly outperformed the anti-virus market as a whole and with the extension of its anti-spam offering, customers will be protected continuously against viruses, spam and other email-borne security threats.

"EMCom and Sophos are committed to providing dependable and cost-effective anti-virus and anti-spam solutions for business users," said David Tallant, Vice President of Sales and Marketing, at EMCom. "We are proud to be an authorized reseller of Sophos."

Combining outstanding engineering and technology, Sophos products protect all key points in a company's IT infrastructure:

- Sophos Anti-Virus provides total multi-platform protection on servers, desktops and laptops.
- MailMonitor provides an extra layer of protection, checking all email traffic at the gateway.
- PureMessage provides a comprehensive secure messaging solution for email gateways, offering anti-virus, anti-spam and policy control.
- Enterprise Manager is a powerful administration tool, which allows the fully automated download of Sophos software and virus updates across the internet from a dedicated website, as well as powerful reporting facilities.
- SAV Interface allows third parties to enhance their applications and services by integrating with Sophos's powerful virus detection and disinfection capabilities.
