

Web Service Delivers Your Messages if Tomorrow Never Comes

Eternal Emotions, November 05, 2004

URL: <http://www.pr9.net/society/relationships/1310november.html>

Eternal Emotions, a steadily growing international web service gives you the chance to express personal feelings to your loved ones after you have passed away.

PR9.NET November 05, 2004 - IF you are one of the millions of people who never find the time to gather your nearest and dearest close and let them know just how much you love them, then you need to visit www.eternalemotions.com.

An international web service, Eternal Emotions offers you the chance to say a final goodbye to your family and friends once you have passed on, thus allowing them the necessary closure to go on with their lives and remember you as you would have wished.

"Most people only realise how much they have left unsaid when they are suddenly confronted with the inevitable: their own demise", says Rajiv Whabi, founder of Eternal Emotions. "To have the chance to leave your loved ones a message from you to read after you have gone gives them strength when they need it most."

It is this strength that www.eternalemotions.com aims at giving those close to your heart, by giving you the chance to plan ahead and write those words you never had the time to say in e-mails that will be sent to those you cherish when the time comes.

In addition to offering a free 15-day trial, the website offers three other packages: Eternal (the basic package), Eternally (the standard package) and Eternity (the premium package). Although these packages vary in the number of mails offered and the functions available, each one provides the same high level of service and protection for those all important words – which can be modified at any time. Best of all, the website is easy to use with 24hour international accessibility and round the clock technical support.

The chance to tell your family that you love them is priceless, but Eternal Emotions allows you to do just that for a once in a lifetime fee and an annual maintenance charge.

Don't be caught off guard. Sign up at www.eternalemotions.com and let the love you have for friends and family live forever.

###

About Eternal Emotions

Eternal Emotions is a web service that allows a user to store personal messages addressed to their loved ones, which are delivered to them after the user has passed away.

Website: <http://www.eternalemotions.com>

PR9.NET - Your Free Press Release Service