LogicalSystemsUSA, an internet services company in Ohio, announces the release of their latest website, CRNH.COM. Site offers news stories relating around the computer industry.

PR9.NET August 16, 2005 - CRNH is an acronym for Computer Reviews News and Hardware. The website offers the latest in computer-related articles retrieving RSS (Really Simple Syndication) newsfeeds from more than 200 websites around the world. Dan Robins, owner of LogicalSystemsUSA, states, "We wanted to provide a source of the latest computer news and RSS gives us the ability to go out and retrieve the material on a regular basis."

The site uses the company's own proprietary software, called RSSSeeker, to spider websites for their RSS news feeds, then displays the headline on the site. Visitors to the site can click on the headline for more information and actually read the story without the need of any software package from the CRNH website.

Topics covered on the website include news, reviews, hardware, software, jobs and an archive area for articles that exceed the 7 day limit imposed on the primary topic. There is also a search utility on the site that allows users to search for particular stories based on a topic or company.

The website address is <http://www.crnh.com>. For more information or to schedule an interview contact Dan Robins by email at drobins@crnh.com.
