

New Language123 blog

Language123, August 23, 2005

URL: <http://www.pr9.net/business/services/2337august.html>

Language123, the translation marketplace, has proudly announced the introduction of a new feature to its Premium members: the Language123 Blog, an online journal where translators and interpreters can post their articles, ideas, experiences and thoughts around the translation industry.

PR9.NET August 23, 2005 - Blogging is at its height, throughout the world professionals in many industries post their articles, discuss ideas and share experiences on these online journals, contributing to the expansion and understanding of different aspects of their trade. Now translators have the opportunity to use this tool to convey their experience and their expectations about the present and future of translation around the globe.

In addition to this unparalleled opportunity to reach out to potential clients, colleagues and translation students, Language123 members receive many additional benefits from this new tool, including:

- More traffic for their websites
- Richer content
- More relevance in search results and, consequently, better ranking
- Room for collaboration and discussion with other translators and linguists
- More opportunities to build a name for themselves in their online community
- The opportunity to share their experience, views and ideas with the general public

Translators interested, can start using it right now and see for themselves how much this new feature can benefit their business. "In only a couple of weeks, this tool has proved to be a great success amongst Language123 members and we hope it will expand and grow for the benefit of our translators and the industry." said Camilo Martinez, Senior Web Developer for Language123 and the brains behind the Language123 Blog technology.

Language123 was launched into the Internet in September 2004 as a solution for translators and interpreters looking to expand their market and get more work, using the internet as a boundless platform to interact with clients, colleagues and agencies worldwide. Since then we have continuously work to achieve a level of quality and efficiency that will benefit all of our members as a community, and will make it easier and faster to find a language professional anywhere at any time.

For those interested in becoming members of Language123, you can log on to <http://language123.com/doc/translator.html> to learn more about this service.

###

About Language123

Lanugage123 is a translation market place. Find translators, or promote your translation services online. For more information about our services, features and the future of the translation market on the internet, please go to http://language123.com/web/common/contact\_us.cgi

Phone: 18885264123
Website: <http://language123.com>