WMS 101 is designed to assist companies with cost justifying, selecting, implementing and maintaining a Warehouse Management System. Rene' Jones the founder of TLS and now President of AHN Corporation says, "This is the first step! We are in the process of revamping our business model to offer our knowledge to the world. We realize everyone can't afford to pay for our consultants but everyone can have access to the tools our consultants use."

PR9.NET September 12, 2005 - TLS is a logistics consultancy organization that focuses specifically on improving the productivity within the warehouse. Rene' says, "Its time to start educating prospective buyers of this technology about the process that accompanies a Warehouse Management System and not just the bells and whistles they provide."

WMS 101 is the first in a series of books being offered: an "Inventory Control Handbook" and a "Warehouse Analysis Handbook" are also being released in September. "These are the exact same tools (Templates) our consultants and many other consultants use in the industry. Except now, these tools can be purchased for under $300 instead of the several thousand dollars you would end up paying a consultant!" Rene' went on to say, "If organizations are serious about their Supply Chains, any improvement initiative must begin in the warehouse. And even though we make a decent living on our consulting dollars, if an organization can get the ball rolling internally prior to a consultant arriving on the scene, it will save them a considerable amount of money, and speedup the implementation process in the long run! Providing a much faster return on their investment."
