Scary, spooky, and frightening character voices have found lodging at InteractiveVoices.com during their Halloween Voice-Over Job campaign. Clients will be able to find Dracula, Igor, Elvira, an array of witches, ghosts, goblins, and Frankenstein to cover their advertising needs as Halloween quickly approaches.

PR9.NET September 13, 2005 - TORONTO, InteractiveVoices, (<http://www.InteractiveVoices.com>), the innovative voice-over marketplace, has now made finding Halloween voices so easy that it is scary. By clicking on a friendly Jack-O-Lantern, clients will find a spectacular amount of demos suited to their needs including a listing of both male and female talent, their nationality and language, and their voice-over demo as well as a link to their web pages where they can be contacted directly for work opportunities.

Clients will find voices from Canada, the United States, Great Britain, Australia, Holland, Argentina, Spain, and India. Each demo was submitted to InteractiveVoices specifically for this Halloween Campaign to enhance the experience of clients that are looking for scary, spooky, otherworldly, and well-known character voices to sell their products with.

Company VP of Marketing Stephanie Ciccarelli says, "With over 70 voices participating, the odds that clients will find what they are looking for on one page are highly favorable. Each talent has offered their best and scariest character voices for review."
