PR9.NET September 27, 2005 - DataCenterLife.com (<http://www.datacenterlife.com>) offers job searching, resume searching, job posting, and resume posting for individuals, companies, and recruiters in the data center industry and profession.

Finally, a solution for data center employers to find the best technology professionals in the industry. It's been a long time coming but now there is a place for data center employers and technology professionals to connect. The right opportunity lies ahead.

In the history of the internet there has never been a website dedicated solely to the employment of data centers and technology professionals. Data centers are responsible for the World Wide Web as well as many network services. The most well known data centers are huge facilities which provide web hosting and management, government data centers which provide support for mission-critical applications and services, and large companies data centers which house thousands of servers and electronic equipment. Aside from the most well known and larger data centers there are also smaller data centers which are small server rooms with a low number of servers and computer equipment which support the infrastructure for smaller private companies, smaller government agencies, or a lone department of a larger company. Data centers come in many different shapes, sizes, designs, and infrastructures. DataCenterLife.com has taken all of this into account and has developed a categorized catalog of job positions which revolve around the employment of large and small data centers around the world. The grand importance of data centers cannot be denied. Even in the wake of economic hardship data centers continue to flourish and continue to employ opportunities in the industry. Data centers throughout the world are constantly hiring and looking for new talent. That's why DataCenterLife.com exist. DataCenterLife.com mission is to help employers in the data center industry and profession connect with talented technology professionals.

For a limited time DataCenterLife.com is offering free job posting for data center employers from all around the world. Initially, employers are given 3 free job post and 15 free resume searches. After the initial offering expires employers will have the opportunity to take advantage of several intelligent and affordable pricing plans which will allow employers/recruiters to post more jobs and complete more resume searches. It is always free for jobseekers to post/upload resumes and search jobs.
