Critical Product Distinction created through Project Costing Management says PRONTO North America

PR9.NET November 14, 2005 - According to Mike Ligudzinski, CEO of PRONTO North America, "Project Costing Management tracks projects from the estimation and quotation stage all the way through to completion. Project Costing Management automates the processes of producing quotations, recording, and controlling costs and tracking project performance."

Projects may be linked together in various ways to form a hierarchy, with reporting relationships between various groups of projects. Purchase orders, creditor invoices, issuing of stock, customer invoices, and progress claims are linked to specific projects.

All transactions and project activities are automatically and instantly updated throughout the system, avoiding inaccuracies and double entries. Project Costing Management provides a true "cradle to grave" project-costing tool tailored to specific business needs.
