Voice123 will be present in the one of the most important film, video, and television production and post production shows in New York City.

PR9.NET November 12, 2005 - New York, NY - Voice123 (<http://voice123.com/?c=p9>), the world's largest online voice over marketplace where voice over talents can promote their voice over services and voice over talent seekers find the best voices for their projects, will be part of the NAB Post Production Show that will be held from November 15th to November 17th, 2005 at the Jacob Javits Convention Center in New York City.

NAB (<http://www.nab.org>), the National Association of Broadcasters, is the organizer of this event that will offer advanced training in the latest production and post production techniques together with an important exhibition of companies that belong to this industry. The show is targeted to audio and video creative professionals involved in edition, production, and direction of videos, films, multimedia, web development, visual effects, animation, and advertising.

Voice123 is currently the most important online marketing tool for voice over talents, and the primary source of voices for voice talent seekers. At the NAB Post Show, the Voice123 stand will showcase live voice over actors doing professional recordings as well as live demonstrations of how the Voice123 website works.

Voice123 is looking forward to being the most important resource of professional voice over talent to all companies, directors, or producers involved in the media and entertainment production and post production industry. They are well on the way to be so thanks to the quickness, easiness, quality, and reliability of their service. The highly targeted and qualified audience attending the NAB Post Show represents the perfect scenario to continue Voice123's growing trend.

To learn more about Voice123 and see why this company has revolutionized voice over casting calls, visit the NAB Post Production exhibits and you will find them in stand number 328. You can also visit the NAB Post Production Show website (<http://www.nabpostplus.com>) for additional information about the event.
