With a lawsuit cash advance, Cindy was able to receive cash today against the future cash settlement of her lawsuit to keep financially afloat while waiting for a settlement of her lawsuit.

PR9.NET November 22, 2005 - After being seriously injured in a motor vehicle accident that was not her fault, Cindy discovered that lawsuit funding from Beacon Legal Finance could change her life.

Thirty-year-old Cindy rode as a passenger in her friend's vehicle when her friend and another driver got in an accident just before the 2001 Christmas holiday. According to the accident report, both drivers failed to yield the right of way to another vehicle approaching from the opposite direction, and both drivers failed to heed traffic signals at the intersection. It happened in daylight while the blacktop pavement was wet due to weather conditions.

Due to the accident, Cindy suffered injuries to her back, neck, throat, vocal cords, throat muscles, shoulder, elbow and both knees with permanent injuries to her throat vocal cords and neck. The throat injury was particularly devastating as Cindy previously worked as a singer and a salesperson. To make matters worse, Cindy's husband divorced this mother of two children six months later so her financial responsibilities increased. Her employer at the time of the accident also went out of business, so Cindy lost her job.

After her car accident, Cindy hired an attorney and filed a lawsuit against the other drivers. Although Cindy expects to receive a settlement from the lawsuit, it takes time for a lawsuit to work its way through the court system. With her bills increasing daily, Cindy searched for a solution to her financial problems. Cindy discovered that she could receive cash today if she agreed to give up a portion of the future cash settlement of her lawsuit. The pricing of the lawsuit funding was expensive, but it seemed fair when Cindy learned that she did not have to pay back the lawsuit funding if her case lost or did not settle for enough cash to pay it back in full.

Cindy checked out the different lawsuit funding companies that are on the internet. One of the companies that Cindy found seemed to be different. Their people treated her with professionalism and respect despite her financial troubles. The rates were competitive and the response time was fast. That company was Beacon Legal Finance, a leader in providing lawsuit funding to plaintiffs with high quality lawsuits. Beacon Legal Finance provided Cindy with financial help from lawsuit funding when she needed it most.
