TheVital.net has just announced the launch of their new digital camera review blog at <http://www.thevital.net/digitalcamera/>

PR9.NET November 21, 2005 - Major technological advances have been achieved in the past few years in the field of digital photography. As a consequence large numbers of different digital camera models are being released in increasingly shorter intervals and consumers feel overwhelmed and confused by the sheer amount of camera models to choose from.

The digital camera review blog has been established to help consumers find information and buying advice on suitable digital cameras more quickly. TheVital.net attempts to list all digital camera reviews of all reputable online camera review sites. This allows the consumer to quickly access all relevant reviews for a specific digital camera model and compare the review results. In addition to the digital camera reviews the blog will provide general information and details on any digital camera reviewed and will collect news and announcements, such as new camera releases, firmware updates or accessories.

The editorial staff is currently in the process of adding digital camera reviews going back as far as the beginning of 2004 to accommodate consumers interested in buying used or sell out models. So far more than 150 digital camera reviews are listed and the number is growing rapidly.

The digital camera review blog can be accessed at <http://www.thevital.net/digitalcamera/> .
