Softomate, leading software development services company, today announced Custom Outlook plugins development Service. Those components blend seamlessly with Outlook user interface and extend Microsoft Outlook functionality resulting in more productive communication experience and information management while using Outlook application.

PR9.NET January 17, 2006 - Lynden, USA -- Softomate, leading software development services provider, today announced it has introduced Custom Outlook plugins development Service to provide components that will give more options and flexibility to Outlook mail client.

Microsoft Outlook offers a high level of customization, allowing to plug in third-party custom add-ins of all sorts. Outlook add-ins (also referred to as Outlook plug-ins, Outlook extensions, or Outlook add-ons) extend Microsoft Outlook options by adding new productive features. Add-ins dock seamlessly to Outlook user interface and allow to add new functionality to Outlook and automate some routine operations.

Outlook is not only an e-mail program; it is also a powerful organizer that supports tasks, calendar, notes, and other objects. Outlook client is enabled to manage information (email messages, contacts, tasks, appointments, etc.) and share it throughout an organization. Outlook add-ins allow Outlook users to enhance their information managing and sharing experience.

Companies can customize and improve their corporate Outlook application for specific corporate intranet or extranet needs. Custom Outlook add-ins allow to create custom user interface, automate e-mail operations and customize information transfer and management. Outlook plugins are helpful software for companies that provide customer services by e-mail. The custom plug-ins can automatically sort and manage incoming and outgoing messages to make communication process prompt and pleasant.

The announced Service aims to variety of Outlook-related projects and enables to enrich Microsoft Outlook with different custom applications: custom toolbar buttons and menu items, custom mail notification add-in, spam filter, calendar and notes plugins, contacts and attachments management plugins, messages grouping add-in, RSS reader and other unique features.
