Portable PA system technology is allowing for easy global travel and a clearer sound.

PR9.NET February 10, 2006 - Anchor Audio's Explorer PRO PA system currently offers features and functions ideal for global travel, such as a Class D amplifier, AC/DC operation and 110/220V power supply. The Explorer PRO can also handle up to two wireless microphones with its built-in receivers and like all other Anchor systems the Explorer PRO offers the latest in portable sound system technology.

"It has been to Argentina, Mexico, Germany, Thailand, Nigeria, Chad, Australia, Paraguay, England, Spain, Panama, The Dominican Republic, and dozens of locations here stateside," says Mark Schaufler of MST Ministries who still uses the Anchor PA system they put into action about seven years ago.

Weighing in at only 26 lbs., the Explorer PRO is easy to transport no matter where the location. Even when AC power is not an option or simply unreliable, the Explorer PRO still shines. "Nigeria is a land where even if there is power you can't count on it being there every time like you can with Anchor's fully charged system. Numerous times we were in areas where the power was off but we could stay on."

Over the past 10 years the Explorer PRO portable PA system has solidified itself as a favorite among church ministries, school teachers and small businesses all over the world. "Next summer we will be back in Europe, Africa and Mexico again and our Anchor system will be with us every step of the way, thanks for such a reliable product that does the job."

Designed for simplicity, as all other Anchor Audio systems, the Explorer PRO portable PA system can be used by anyone anywhere. Whether it's educating, ministering, or training a large group of young professionals, getting started is as simple as powering the unit on and talking into the microphone.
