PR9.NET March 15, 2006 - New York, NY - Without publicity, most artists that are the most known artists and celebrities we know today would not be where they are and would not be as known as they are today. Let's face it, it's common now to hear about or see that a lot of independent artists fail to make it big in this now billion dollar Industry (the Rap/Hip-Hop Industry) and there's a number of reasons behind their failure. If we 'flip the script' and say let's not focus on failure yet let's focus on what is behind the success of those who do make it, then you'll find that publicity weighs in heavily. It is publicity that gets artists in magazines, on radio shows, and on tv shows and it is the combination of all these things that give artists the shine they need on their road to success or it is this shine that helps them hold onto their success.

Now, publicity, for most of the really successful artists is usually handled by publicists or marketing firms and these guys and girls don't come cheap, at least not the best of them; so, for this reason, many independent artists or labels or newly started music and entertainment companies cannot obtain this kind of publicity easily without a considerable budget. Well not anymore! Internet news distribution and press release services over the internet have now made this type of publicity and marketing affordable and obtainable by all.

Although there are now numerous credible and quality news distribution and press release services available there has not been one which is targeted solely at supporting the Rap/Hip-hop/R&B genres of the music and entertainment Industry such as Rap Newswire.

Members (ranging from writers and publicists to website publishers and independent artists, labels, DJs and promoters) can register FREE with RapNewswire.com to experience services which feature worldwide news distribution of artist and label news, tour news, cd release news, music business news, gaming news, fashion plus model news and more to a database of hip-hop journalists, A&R, website publishers and others who are in the Music/Entertainment field. After users become members of Rap Newswire, with one-click, they can then submit press releases, news and articles that will be distributed through daily email alerts, rss feeds and other website publishers. Contact information and a website link can be attached to every release for FREE, and with a small contribution starting at only $10, members can upgrade articles to gain further exposure throughout the network such as Improved Placement, Image Attachments, Spotlight Features and more.

There's a multitude of hip-hop news sources that have always been over the internet publishing great news, however until Rap Newswire, those hip-hop sources were not as easy for consumers, readers and publishers to locate. There are a number of great hip-hop publications online but they had no central location to network and circulate news, therefore Rap Newswire was created to help consumers, readers and publishers easily identify credible rap/hip-hop news sources and content.
