With long term mortgage rates on the rise again this means the 'Sellers Market' of the last couple years will start to turn into a 'Buyers Market' with more houses and condominiums available for sale than there are qualified buyers. In order to get the best deal, buyers need to do their homework and calculate what mortgage they can afford to purchase.

PR9.NET February 02, 2006 - Auburn, Ca -- Recent polls revealed that one of the most used applications of the Internet is mortgage research. People all over the world are not only looking for great home mortgage deals but also mortgage calculation tools to estimate potential mortgages and other Real Estate costs.

"This is why REGlossary.com was created." Founder Neil Bartlett says, "We want people who are looking to buy Real Estate to be aware of where they can find the right tools to help get the best mortgage deal possible.

"REGlossary.com" says Bartlett "contains free, detailed information and tools focusing on Real Estate and home mortgages not hype. Arm yourself with the right information and you can literally turn your entire Real Estate future around.

Being able to calculate different mortgage scenarios is one of the most important things you can do to improve your odds at getting the best Real Estate deal. This web site gives you the tools to help you accomplish that independently, without having to pay others to do it for you."

REGlossary.com provides free access to 19 different mortgage calculators, everything from mortgage payments to principal calculators to what is the real APR for a loan. The web site also offers its visitors the option of generating the mortgage calculation information into a PDF format so they can print it and read it at their convenience. "We encourage our visitors to use the information to their advantage and even pass it on to their family and friends, who may also need this information." Says Bartlett.

In addition, REGlossary.com offers its visitors the ability to research Real Estate terminology to better understand Real Estate in general and help you finance your dream home. Visitors can even signup to receive a free Real Estate 'Term of the Day'.
