McKibbin Appointed to VP of Product Development and Customer Service at Shoplogix

PR9.NET April 10, 2006 - Oakville, ON - Shoplogix has created the position of vice-president of Product Development and Customer Support for Karen McKibbin. Her responsibilities include product development and post-sales customer support. According to Scott Birmingham, Manager of Product Marketing, "This new position filled by Karen brings value to our customers by creating a single point of responsibility for spearheading and managing product development and post-sales technical support."

Karen has over 20 years of information technology experience in both the public and private sectors. Prior to joining Shoplogix as Vice President of Product Development and Customer Support, she was responsible for leading the integration of technology services and the provision of support and service management for a number of provincial ministries. Most recently, as project director, Karen led the consolidation of the messaging environment for over 12,000 provincial ministry clients and the establishment of the technology infrastructure for the newly formed Ontario ministries of Health Promotion and Children and Youth Services.
