LegalFish now brings unprecedented mobility to online client acquisition with a new mobile version of its popular online service.

PR9.NET June 30, 2006 - Chicago, IL -- LegalFish the premium online matching service that is redefining the way consumers find the right lawyer, has launched LegalFish MobilePro™, a new service that offers its registered lawyers the ability to review case submissions on their mobile phone or Wireless Application Protocol or WAP-enabled device.

Lawyers are keen Internet users and among the most active users of mobile phones. Legal professionals can use mobile devices to improve efficiency, and are doing so in increasing numbers. "With both usage and the number of users are growing every day, mobile internet communications has become a bankable business asset at many law firms," says Joshua Fuhrmark, Managing Director of Chicago-based LegalFish.

There's been significant growth in lawyers taking client or other information with them and extending their practice beyond the confines of the traditional office environment. LegalFish MobilePro enables registered member lawyers using wireless Personal Digital Assistants (PDAs), BlackBerries, and mobile phones with internet connectivity to access the LegalFish.com web service while they are away from their desktop PC or on-the-go.

Law firms are especially interested in the productivity advantages promised by wireless internet communications. LegalFish MobilePro allows member attorneys to:

- Connect directly to LegalFish.com from their wireless PDA, BlackBerry or mobile phone wherever they are located.
- Receive, review, and respond to wireless email notifications of new case submission and client opportunities submitted to the LegalFish.com.
- Work with ease and flexibility to pursue new opportunities and communicate with potential clients while at court or on the road.

Adapted to work on most WAP-enabled devices, LegalFish MobilePro ensures that a registered member attorney will not miss any new cases that are submitted to LegalFish.com.

With this new service, a potential client is now no farther than a simple text message away.

LegalFish MobilePro Version 1.0 can be accessed directly through an internet-enabled mobile phone web browser at URL: <http://www.legalfish.com/mobile>.
