Instrom, independent security consultants from Buckinghamshire, have updated and optimised their website to establish them as leader within the security consultancy network.

PR9.NET July 04, 2006 - Established in 1998, Instrom offers a wide range of security consultancy services across many different industry sectors from risk assessments to project management, from managing tender processes on behalf of clients to providing unbiased security advice for the design and layout of buildings new or old.

Ken Graham, Principal Consultant of Instrom, says: "We realised that our website needed updating to reflect the many security services we offer and to establish us as a strong contender in the security consultancy market. We feel that the new-look website with its user-friendly approach allows us to fully exploit the amazing world of the internet." You can view the new Instrom website at www.instrom.com.

Instrom chose Branch Communications to assist them in launching and optimizing their new website, you can contact Branch on www.branchcommunications.co.uk.
