Navino launches its bookmark manager service, which can let Internet users manage their favorite website addresses online and access them everywhere.

PR9.NET July 08, 2006 - Edmonton, Canada, – Internet users can manage their favorite website addresses online and access them everywhere now.

Surfers are no longer use just one computer now. They access Internet from work, home, school, library and everywhere. "Online bookmark manager can greatly help the Internet users to surf the net, to manage and access their favorite website addresses anywhere. With just one click, users can easily save their favorites and share with friends", said Tony Zhou, founder of Navino.

Combined with Navino's Search Gateway Service, which can let Internet users search the best information from the best content providers in one website, Internet users can surf the Internet more easily now.
