Punk Rock Craft Fair combines raw musical performances, underground arts and crafts, and side-show like attractions

PR9.NET July 13, 2006 - San Diego, CA – It may be called a craft fair, but don't expect to find any crocheted doilies on hand. The Punk Rock Craft Fair has very little in common with the church bazaar atmosphere usually associated with craft sales. The Punk Rock Craft Fair, to be held this July 29th and 30th at the Che Collective on the UCSD campus, is a free two-day festival that combines raw musical performances, underground arts and crafts, and side-show like attractions to create a truly unique experience.

"It's going to be wild," says Nicole Yost, the event's organizer, "Not only do we have a great mix of oddball art, we also have a burlesque show, a wrestling show, punk bands, a dominatrix, and lots of other great entertainment." The event is a collaborative effort of hip local crafters the San Diego Craft Mafia and the Bad Girls of Craft. A full schedule of events and vendors can be found on the Punk Rock Craft Fair Website at www.punkrockcraftfair.com.

The Punk Rock Craft Fair is a two-day festival that features different bands, performers, artists and vendors on each day. Visitors to the free event will also have the opportunity to win a variety of unique prizes that have been donated by artists and vendors from across the country.

The Punk Rock Craft fair will be held on Saturday July 29 and Sunday July 30 at the Che on the UCSD campus in San Diego. The event is free and runs from 10 am to 6 pm both days. All ages are welcome. More information about the event, including a list of vendors and performers, can be found at the Punk Rock Craft Fair website at www.punkrockcraftfair.com
