Xlibris author, Barbara Bitela, recounts a life-changing story on surviving life set on one of Shanghai's most arduous times.

PR9.NET August 08, 2006 - California, USA - Barbara Bitela, having won First Place Short Story Fiction 2006 - CNW/FFWA Florida State Writing Competition Writers Editors Network, conveys her fervor for life, faith and love of country in a boy's compelling journey through the rough times during the Japanese occupation of Shanghai.

Published April 2006, Full Moon Morning: A Shanghai Survivor's Story tells of the plight of Dieter (John Ludwig) and his family, a group of German Jews, who left for China, escaping the clutches of Hitler, unknowing of the odds facing them that would conquer all but the most persistent against the atrocious cruelty of the Japanese military.

Based on factual events, Full Moon Morning: A Shanghai Survivor's Story may be purchased directly through Xlibris Corporation or Barnes and Noble.com, Amazon.com, Borders.com or through Baker & Taylor and Ingram Book Distribution.
