Blogs have become all the rage on Earth but now comes the universe's first inter-galactic blog!

PR9.NET August 15, 2006 - London, UK - Zmodsworld (<http://www.zmodsworld.com>) aims to bring exciting news and fresh insight into life on the planet Bartoch, far away on the other side of the galaxy. Hosted by Zmod – the star of the book 'My Alien Penfriend' by Faiz Kermani (ISBN 1420858602 - published by AuthorHouse and available on Amazon), Zmodsworld seeks to encourage spaceblogging from more aliens.

"My friends on Earth tell me that they hear very little about Bartoch," said Zmod. "I hope that through my spaceblog you'll get to learn more about my planet and all my inter-galactic friends. There's lots that I'm looking forward to telling you about – both serious and fun stuff! Spaceblogging is the best way to make friends across the galaxy and have a good time. Everyone should do it!"

According to a recent survey in The Alien Times, the trend in spaceblogging has surged by over 2000% over the last four years. Initially used for short-range planetary business, spaceblogging has now expanded in order for individuals to establish contact with aliens further away from home planets.

"I'm convinced that spaceblogging is the future of alien communication," added Professor Prip Mongoop, Head of Cosmic Connectionology at Flicgat University, one of Bartoch's most advanced technology institutions. "We've been looking for a way to make this technology accessible to young aliens for a long time and thanks to the generosity and groundbreaking work of the Chinspirations Blog Network, we are now able to do so. On Bartoch, Zmod is one of our young pioneers in this area, but I'm sure that soon there will be others from all around the galaxy participating in this exciting venture!"
