September Leach, an Atlanta voice professional, provides voice overs with style and a smile at Voices.com.

PR9.NET August 18, 2006 - Toronto, Canada – September Leach began her career as a veterinary technician, caring for animals by day and freelancing as a voice over artist by night. Recently, September's flow of voice-over jobs increased so robustly that she decided to pursue voice-overs full-time, trading in her stethoscope for a microphone.

As a teenager, September was heavily involved with the Atlanta music scene. She began recording promotions and street teaming for local bands, activities that led her straight into the paths of radio DJs, a number of whom admired her voice and the energy her voice embodies. Realizing her potential, the station crew permitted September to record commercials for broadcast, and the rest, they say, is history.

Most notably, September is the imaging and promo voice for a radio talk show about the paranormal called "The NightWatch Show with Todd Sheets", a program aired by over 55 affiliates worldwide.

Voices.com marketing director Stephanie Ciccarelli says, "September's voice is a pleasure to listen to. Her youthful sound is soothing and unique while maintaining a full range of versatility."

September's voice artistry services are available online at Voices.com. Listening to a sample of September's voice is as easy as clicking the play button.
