PR9.NET August 25, 2006 - Cardigan, Wales – Anna-Marie Stewart of AnnaMarketing.com has released a second installment of Real Life Marketer Interviews. Real Life Marketer Interviews Volume II is composed of fifty in-depth interviews with successful internet marketers who share their individualized accomplishments in the online marketplace. It follows the successful Real Life Marketer Interviews, which was released in 2005.

"I want to show everyday people that it IS possible to make money online without listening to all the hype and getting burnt, but by actually working your business AS a business," says Stewart, the online author of the Real Life Marketer Interviews series.

Stewart, inspired by her personal bumpy road to internet marketing success, creates materials to give perspective to beginning business owners starting to explore various online avenues. Stewart spent almost seven years attempting various business ventures and following the latest marketing trends before finding her niche. She has been able to translate these experiences, as well as those of other flourishing business owners, into quality products to help others find their way.

In her latest work, Stewart interviews well-known individuals within online communities in an effort to extract information that can inspire and assist others in their online ventures. The interview subjects reveal past mistakes, day-to-day activities, large-scale business strategies, and personal thoughts on the future of online marketing.

In addition to the fifty interviews, Real Life Marketer Interviews Volume II includes bonus features with an additional six interviews, twenty-one case studies, as well as five audio versions of the actual interviews.
