UKLI Group has recently integrated the satellite images of the land available for sale at their official website

PR9.NET September 02, 2006 - London, UK - The UK's leading land investment business, UKLI Group has recently integrated the satellite images of the land available for sale at their official website <http://www.uklandinvestments.com>.

"Zoom-able to the point" interactive satellite maps gives an exact idea of the location & surroundings of the plots offered by UKLI. This new functionality enables visitors to see the sites at a glance as observed by Earth-orbiting satellites, or zoom down to a regional scale for greater detail. An interactive map also makes it possible to study the visual appearance of the landscapes, and the road network.

These satellite images help the land buyers to easily locate the site on maps and get the information required to make the buying decision without having to visit the sites which may not always be convenient.

The UKLI website with satellite image integration acts as a valuable decision making tool for any prospective land investors, offering site updates and land investment services, with a more logical and user-friendly interface.
