Announcement of an article directory database for virtual assistant articles

PR9.NET September 06, 2006 - Vancouver, Canada. In the past few months, there has been a significant growth in the Virtual Assistant (VA) industry. Shadowing this growth Virtual Assistant Networking (VAN), <http://www.VANetworking.com> now sports over 3000+ members. Work at home business entrepreneurs from the four corners of the world have become members of this website to learn, share information about the industry and to network with other aspiring and successful Virtual Assistants globally.

Subsequently, to further educate Virtual Assistants in gaining knowledge of the industry knowledgeable people have been writing articles about the virtual assistant industry. These articles explain to new Virtual Assistants, individuals, and the media what this industry is all about, how it's growing, and how to use its services.

This is where the new addition of a VA Article Directory niched to the virtual assistant industry comes in.

Patty Dost, owner of www.TimelsOfTheEsCents.com, Resources Coordinator for VAN, has volunteered to assist Tawnya Sutherland, founder of VANetworking, in compiling articles to add to the new site article directory. At this directory, VAs can read articles to assist them in marketing, starting their own VA business, and various other topics. There is also a section available of articles to explain to business owners what VAs can do for them and their business to save time and money.

"I'm very excited to volunteer with Tawnya on this directory," says Patty. "This article directory will be your one-stop source for free articles on everything to do about the virtual assistance industry. Following the directory guidelines, individuals can easily submit their own articles which can be used as free content in e-zines or on websites as long as there are no modifications to the article, the author's resource box is included, and the links are made active."

Patty also comments "If you would like to expose your Virtual Assistant articles to thousands of publishers and get yourself known as a writer in the media, this is the place to be."

"It's time we find new and creative ways to bring awareness to the virtual assistant industry and with this new VA Article Directory, I hope to further my mission" states Tawnya Sutherland. Stop by and feel free to submit your own articles or read some of ours at www.VANetworking.com/articles.
