As summer comes to a close and daily routines have once again begun, now is the perfect time for travelers to take a getaway to sunny Naples, Florida. The crowds have dissipated and the beaches are warm and private, making autumn the ideal time for some R&R.

PR9.NET September 20, 2006 - Naples, FL – Florida has long been a popular hot spot for late summer and early fall travelers, with sunny, Gulf-coast Naples leading the list. With travelers flocking to Naples in swarms during the winter months, this is the perfect time of year to capture a bit of solitude among the unspoiled beaches and swaying palm trees. The Beaches in Naples have been voted the "Best Beach in the US" by the Travel Channel.

Naples has long been known for its posh atmosphere, world-class golfing, nightlife, warm sandy beaches, and art galleries. What impresses travelers the most however, are the wide array of stunning resorts the area boasts. Naples, Florida has something for every traveler – whether it is a four or five star resort like the Ritz-Carlton or the Edgewater Beach Hotel, a more modest property like the Vanderbilt Inn on the Gulf or the Park Shore Resort, or a NaplesBest "Best Value" hotel like the Staybridge Suites.
