Popular Web Arcade Game Gum releases version 4 with new and improved features

PR9.NET September 27, 2006 - Tucson, AZ – GameGum is proud to announce the release of its newest version, GameGum version 4. Version 4 improves on the features available in version 3 and adds many new features including a full forum, an overhauled user system and backend, and a new design utilizing AJAX and fitting the mold for Web 2.0 sites.

The developers at GameGum have spent countless days making edits and changes in design and functionality for its member's ease of use. There are over 750 games listed in all categories from Sports to Strategy and everything in between.

The GameGum web arcade is completely free so visitors can simply select games they like and play. Visitors can also sign up and submit games they like. Hence, it is a great way for game publishers to spread their word about their newest releases and increase interest.

"We are very happy to finally announce the release of GameGum version 4," said web site owner Nate Wienert. "We have spent a lot of time developing it and are proud with what we have come up with. It has come together over many hours of work and stands as a complete and rounded product."

You can visit GameGum and play the games at <http://www.gamegum.com>.
