PR9.NET October 16, 2006 - MEDFORD, NJ: Frankentek, Inc. (www.Frankentek.com) was awarded two industry awards at the 2006 annual international CEDIA convention held in Denver, CO. from September 5th to the 9th.

Frankentek was awarded the Bronze Level Award for the category of best Integrated Home - Level IV from $500K-$799K. Some of the project's photos can be viewed at http://www.cedia.net/awards/2006\_awards/ih4\_b.php.

Frankentek was also awarded the Silver Level Award for the category of best Media Room. Some of the project's photos can be viewed at, http://www.cedia.net/awards/2006\_awards/mr\_s.php.

The Custom Electronic Design and Installation Association known as CEDIA (www.CEDIA.net) include more than 3,000 member companies worldwide that specialize in designing and installing electronic systems for the home. Each year CEDIA honors its members with awards in various categories.

"The CEDIA awards are special to us since it comes from our industry's association whose members and judges are other companies just like ours around the globe. Also, we were one of only a couple of companies who were presented awards in multiple categories," stated Edward G. Wickham, CIO of Frankentek, Inc.
