Atlanta's newest business center is noted as prime real estate for business. However its locality makes for heavy traffic for its tenants in a very unusual location.

PR9.NET November 29, 2006 - Atlanta – It is said that location is the most essential factor to consider when choosing real estate for your business, simply because location is what makes the difference between being patronized by customers or not. But no matter where you're located, the location of choice will have to be easily accessible to traffic. So normally you'll want your business located in the best possible location. But with such a huge area of coverage to canvas where do you begin to set up shop.

If you seek an unconventional yet unique location-you'll find it right before your eyes just a few clicks away. As one of the newest addresses to premier this summer in Atlanta's business community, Capital Centre provides a proactive business solution, where businesses can serve there customers directly with an open door policy-in a search free environment at no cost per click advertising. It's a location where business owners feel like members of an honorary community and not just occupants of a web address.

Unlike other commercial real estate, Capital Centre is conveniently accessible within minutes from any major internet super highway. With Phase I under development and scheduled to open for business this February leasing web space is just as one click away. For more information on leasing one of the luxurious designed Web Suites please visit the leasing office to sign up. Prices are from the low $3 to the mid $30's.
