Sunrez Corporation released its redesigned website: www.sunrez.com with detailed information about light cure technology and resins.

PR9.NET January 04, 2007 - El Cajon, CA – Sunrez Corporation released its improved user-friendly website this week.

For those unfamiliar with light cure technology, Sunrez provides an introduction to the area with detail-rich pages and explanatory graphics.

The new website also provides more detailed information about light cure technology and resins, as well as applications and descriptions for the products developed by Sunrez in pdf format.

Sunrez holds key patents in the use and application of light curing resins that include technologies in the area of resin infusion (VARTM), reduction of styrene emissions, prepregging, patching, joining, repair and new composite fabrication. Sunrez Corporation has the distinction of having the largest knowledge base in existence for light curing resin compositions.

The new website displays a modern, clean style and look, allowing for easy navigation and a better user experience. The new website was designed by Pamil Visions, with attention to corporate branding guidelines and with Web accessibility and Web standards in mind. Each page was individually tested with Cynthia (to ensure accessibility for users with disabilities) and the HTML and CSS validators from W3C.

All this information, and much more, is available online, for your review at www.sunrez.com
