PR9.NET February 14, 2007 - Park Ridge, NJ and Frisco, CO - Imagine Tomorrow is a content development company currently producing one of the fastest growing educational activities geared towards the preschool market. Started in 1991 by Judy Patterson, a former school teacher, Imagine Tomorrow is a company that has over a decade and a half of knowledge successfully developing, distributing and implementing its own brand of computer based educational programs and content for young children ages three through seven. Adding on a licensing division in 2004, Imagine Tomorrow directly distributes its proprietary software and content to business owners and entrepreneurs that service young children.

In just two and a half years of offering its custom software to entrepreneurs and business owners, Imagine Tomorrow has expanded its reach to over 250 locations across the U.S., encompassing twenty-five states. The Company's network of licensees offers the unique content, with new locations added daily.

Combining the engaging qualities of a live action series with animated characters, and original interactive software, the Company has a growing fan base of pint size participant's signing up at local schools, private centers, and retail stores for the ultimate preschool multi-media experience.

The Program

Imagine Tomorrow's programming brings technology themes to life with lovable characters, original places, and age-appropriate stories built around a core of essential early literacy skills. The interactive adventures offer cross gender appeal to young audiences ages 2 – 7 and across different demographics. With a library of over 120 original episodes containing software, video and web content the Company provides cohesive programming that is entertaining and educational.

The Imagine Tomorrow program is unique in the way its video leads the audience to continue their experience through the software, and then guides them to complete the experience on the Company website. While each piece can stand-alone, together they allow Imagine Tomorrow to build a learning foundation through a series of personalized interactions that strengthen relationships with the young audience.
