Stunning Key West Florida offers travelers a wonderful, spring vacation before the crowds hit. It truly is a Caribbean paradise where passports are not needed. Travel plans should be made early.

PR9.NET March 01, 2007 - Key West, FL – Key West offers a bit more of a relaxed pace during the months of April through May with less traffic, sublime weather, and significantly lower prices at lodging and shops throughout this island paradise.

With amazing prices and the same great myriad of things to see and do, now is the time to reserve Key West springtime vacations. This Florida Key beach town offers a great experience for travelers looking for that Caribbean flair without the hassles of passports and time-consuming customs. To make the most out of vacation time in Key West, the best way to get a handle on the layout of the town and plan what to see and do while on vacation is taking the Conch Tour Train.

For a little head-start and some inside traveler advice, some favorite dining options to consider are Blue Heaven for the best breakfasts in town, the all-you-can-eat $10 pasta dish at Carmine's, scrumptious fresh seafood at Schooner Wharf, and the Green Parrot Bar for a wide array of exotic and traditional drinks. Speaking of drinks, wise travelers can score free beer at Irish Kevin's (just ask the guitar player how). Probably the best deal in Key West, visitors can also get a free drink and half price appetizers during happy hour at Alonzo's.

A few suggested vacation activities include parasailing, meandering along or relaxing on Taylor or Smathers Beach, and watching the many fishing boats docking in the marina, unloading daily catches. Some other favorites are taking a free ghost tour at the cemetery, visiting one of the many museums like Mel Fischer's Treasure Museum, the Customs House, the Hemingway House, Ripley's Believe It or Not, the Audubon House, or the Truman House, and shopping at a virtually unlimited number of stores.

Mallory Square sunsets are a must see and while there, stick around for some great evening entertainment. Another great place to watch the sunset is from the top of LaConcha Hotel which is the highest spot in Key West.
