LAZULI- a brand of progressive and innovative jewelry, presents a collection which melds the timelessness of copper with the sleek contours of the season.

PR9.NET March 17, 2007 - Boston, MA - The use of copper in fashion dates back to 3900 B.C where Ancient Egyptians, long known as "innovative creators of jewelry" used it abundantly to design the ornate crowns and headdresses that adorned royalty.

Today, LAZULI, the modern day jewelry innovator, presents a regal collection of power cuffs, breast plate necklaces and larger-than-life earrings in shiny, hammered and matte copper.

The statement-making collection melds the timeless, rich, earthy metal with the contemporary, sleek contours of the season. Fit for a queen, but designed for a goddess.

The entire LAZULI jewelry collection can be found at www.lazulijewelry.com.
