TeachOverseas.info announces the release of Overseas Teachers Talk - an Interview Series with International Teachers, which is aimed at answering teachers' questions about teaching abroad in international schools.

PR9.NET March 19, 2007 - Bangkok, Thailand – TeachOverseas.info announces the release of Overseas Teachers Talk - an Interview Series with International Teachers an interview series recorded for elementary and high school teachers who are considering applying for teaching positions at one of over 4000 international schools recruiting English-speaking teachers.

Overseas Teachers Talk is the work of Kelly Blackwell, an international teacher with 10 years experience teaching abroad and who is currently teaching at a leading international school in Bangkok, Thailand. Kelly has produced this audio recording because she wishes there was an information source like Overseas Teachers Talk to answer her questions when she was first looking at teaching abroad.

A survey of Kelly Blackwell's subscribers revealed that a number of prospective international teachers have questions about teaching overseas that they would like answered by their professional colleagues already teaching on the international school circuit. Overseas Teachers Talk consists of interviews with seven career teachers with a collective experience spanning over 50 years of teaching and over a dozen countries around the globe. The subjects covered in the interview series are diverse, from questions to ask recruiters, to travelling with children.

Kelly Blackwell launched the TeachOverseas.info website in November, 2006 with her book The Complete Guide to Securing a Job at an International School. Overseas Teachers Talk is her second product geared towards the international career teacher.

Overseas Teachers Talk - an Interview Series with International Teachers is available online from TeachOverseas.info exclusively.
