Expert internet marketers say as many as 97% of all online home businesses fail. Dreams of financial security disappear. But why if so much is promised by the very same successful internet experts?

PR9.NET February 28, 2007 - San Diego, CA - In the US the uncertainty of the job market along with financial stress and anxiety is causing many to turn to an online home business as a second part time job. Therein lies the problem experts say. Does the average person give a second part time job the importance they give their primary job? The promise of quick easy money from an online home business where a computer does most of the work creates a get rich quick mentality that inevitably ends up in disappointment. The key to success however is training from an experienced organization. After all can one start a restaurant without any training?

The truth is many have made and continue to make money from internet home businesses. These are the ones that made a commitment to change their lives and will not take no for an answer, the same attitude that brick and mortar business people use to make millions.

Signing up and diving into an online home business if nothing else will reveal how a business can and should be marketed. The knowledge gained is invaluable and can only be learned by actually following the program. The key is to find a program that offers expert step by step advice through the entire process.

Here are just 3 tips that must be considered:

If it sounds too good to be true it probably is true after all people have made good money on the internet.

The sales pitch will be very strong. It will grab one and not let go. If it works copy it.

Don't fall for the exaggerated get rich quick pitch. Good programs take time to develop but they definitely work.
