

Voice-Changing Software Localized to the Japanese Market

ScreamingBee, April 12, 2007

URL: <http://www.pr9.net/comp/software/5404april.html>

Screaming Bee releases MorphVOX Pro to the Japanese market. This product provides voice-changing capability to the online games and pro studio applications.

PR9.NET April 12, 2007 - Middleton, WI - Screaming Bee LLC is pleased to release a new voice-changing product to the Japanese market. MorphVOX Pro Voice Changer provides high-quality voice modification to online games, instant messaging, and the professional studio. The product has been localized to meet the growing demands for voice modification technology in Japan.

"Due to growing interest from Japan, we made a special effort to localize MorphVOX Pro," explains Mark Ramirez, CEO of Screaming Bee. He adds, "Our Japanese customers will now be better served by the revised product and the translated web pages."

Not only has the MorphVOX Pro user interface been revised, but also the associated FAQ, technical support, product and purchase pages have been translated to Japanese. This should provide Japanese customers with a better experience with both the voice changing product as well as the online website.

The revised version of MorphVOX Pro is packed with new features including advanced voice learning, background noise cancellation, and recording capabilities geared for audio/video professionals. Studios that use this tool can save time and potentially thousands of dollars by creating multiple voices from existing stock audio or a single voice talent.

MorphVOX Pro also enhances online game communication. It has a number of features which gamers find useful, such as push-to-talk, sound effects, and audio alarms. Online gamers can now sound like the character they play, whether they choose to be an enormous giant or a grumpy dwarf. MorphVOX Pro can be used with all online games and also works well with any chat program.

###

About ScreamingBee

Based in Middleton, Wisconsin, Screaming Bee is a leading provider of voice software and solutions for online games, VoIP and multimedia applications. Screaming Bee's high-quality voice morphing technology is used in online games. Gamers can now have voices to match their in-game characters. The flagship product, MorphVOX Pro, can be used to morph an existing audio file or record a voice directly to file. Studios that use this tool can save time and potentially thousands of dollars by creating multiple voices from existing stock audio or a single voice talent. MorphVOX Pro is used by professionals in a number of fields, including education, radio broadcasting, and animation.

Website: <http://www.screamingbee.com>

E-Mail: sales@screamingbee.com