PR9.NET May 29, 2007 - London UK - When it comes to capturing screen data it would appear that Cam Studio Pro is making waves amongst the internet community. Until recently, it was mainly the bigger players such as Camtasia Studio that were causing all the fuss but now it looks like Camtasia may very well have a healthy competitor.

What Do We Know About Cam Studio Pro?

Well, the software was engineered by Online Video Guru Dave Guindon who took an older software program (Cam Studio) and engineered it into becoming a much more advanced and sophisticated application. Some of the changes he's made are incredible and make the program quite appealing with its current price tag.

Currently retailing at the insanely low price of $29.95, you can understand why webmasters, online businesses or anybody with an interest in recording from their computer screen is snapping this software up like crazy!

Just Look At Some Of The Features.

Upload Flash videos to the web works in Firefox, Internet Explorer and Netscape!

Once the video ends that you have created you can redirect your visitor to any specified URL. This in alone is worth more than its weight in gold.

Choose and format your button styles and colours!

The program has its own webpage designer that allows you to speedily format your video web pages.

You can easily and professionally record all screen and audio activity on your PC and develop universal AVI video files that are compatible with most applications.

Cam Studio Pro features a built-in SWF Producer to convert your AVI files into compatible Streaming Flash videos (SWFs).

Add screen captions to your recordings in no time at all.

The program has its own Lossless Codec that produces crystal clear results.

Choose custom cursors

Option to record different sections of the screen or all of it depending on your preferences.

The above examples are just some of the reasons why Cam Studio Pro is such a powerful program to have.

Dave Guindon has done a great job with this program and offers a great customer support service for users.

All in all, Cam Studio Pro seems like an ideal purchase for businesses or webmasters on a budget and should prove a powerful tool to use whilst at the same time taking the sting out of the cost!
