The online printing industry recently rolled out the red carpet for another addition to its fast growing family. Combining the power of the conventional commercial printing with that of the newest technology in the market, the printing industry welcomed an online printing service provider in the fold. Many are excited to note that the introduction of the technologically advanced online printing company is a welcome reprieve for those who want something different and innovative.

PR9.NET June 26, 2007 - Arlington, Texas - The online printing industry recently rolled out the red carpet for another addition to its fast growing family. Combining the power of the conventional commercial printing with that of the newest technology in the market, the printing industry welcomed an online printing service provider in the fold. Many are excited to note that the introduction of the technologically advanced online printing company is a welcome reprieve for those who want something different and innovative.

PrintPlace.com is the online printing company based in Arlington, Texas. Backed by experts and professionals, and state-of-the-art equipment that can deliver fast, quality turn around, end-to-end color managed work flows, internal calibration processes, and a strong print background, they can most certainly guarantee only the best printing services ever available online unlike other online printing companies.

Going online for orders and printing quotes are also made easy with PrintPlace. They have a client friendly website that uses the online printing industry's most powerful and flexible quote tool. With just a simple click, clients can get their order quotes in a flash.

"This is only the beginning. We plan to make it easier for clients to get quality end results according to their satisfaction. PrintPlace is THE place to be right now and we hope to be the precedent to quality online commercial printing in the area."
