PR9.NET July 18, 2007 - London, UK - The all new G7 system developed by Forex-science is drawing rave reviews from the circle of financial analysts. This system is proving increasingly effective for many online FX traders in currency market around the world. According to a recent report published by Forex-science, 7 out of 10 traders in the UK alone are profiting from their investment in online currency trading, using the G7 system. The phenomenal success of this brand-new G7 forex system has triggered a record number of subscribers in the last quarter for Forex-science.

James De Wet, CEO of Forex-science shares the secrets, "It's official now. Forex traders have finally got what they've long been searching for. We're not blowing it up; the effectiveness of our G7 system is out there for everyone to see. The results have been very encouraging in the last couple of quarters and we're on the try to make it even more effective."

The G7 system has been developed after a detailed research taking into the real-time problems faced by the FX traders during online currency trading around the world. Hailed as "One of the most accurate Forex systems in the market in 2007", this G7 system by Forex-science is sending ripples across the FX market around the world.

The most talked about G7 system is said to be based on the PAPA principle, which is a fresh and refined approach towards online currency trading. Further, this system has already been widely accepted as a standard tool for investing money into the FX market. The G7 system has proved effective for all genres of currency traders and, it features simplified approaches, accurate principles, clear money management statements at the lowest possible risks, most appropriate risk/reward ratio among others.

"Finally, our extensive and exhaustive technical research has paid off. The entire credit goes to our professionals who have done a lot of hard work to develop such an effective system. Our G7 Forex trading system is simple and easy-to-use. This why most of our subscribers have been able to maximize their profit despite the fluctuating nature of online currency trading." adds James.

If you are an online currency trader, then you are most likely to get ambushed by tall claims of many FX trading sites. However, very few have proved themselves as emphatically as Forex-science has. Further, what really makes Forex-science stand apart from the rest is its "Free analysis and daily reports for 4 weeks" and "100% money back guarantee" in case this system does not work for you which is apparently a far-cry given the success of G7 system in the present scenario.
