New Investor Podcast will Travel the Highways of the Future, Discussing Green Automotive Trends and Opportunities

PR9.NET July 20, 2007 - DELTA, BC - www.InvestorIdeas.com, and its global investor and industry Greentech content portals announce the launch of a new environmental podcast, "Driving Green, the Highways of the Future."

Investors and consumers can follow host Dawn Van Zant, in the new environmental podcast that will examine new technology, fuels and trends in the green transportation shift. As the transportation sector currently accounts for over one quarter of energy use and as the number of automobiles on the road increases globally, the race is on for new, green and environmental transportation. Topics will cover public and private companies with alternative technology and fuels, research and trends, industry experts, as well as the information resources available to make educated decisions.

"Join me on the road to the green highways of the future. Part of the journey for me is facing my own personal transition, selling my much loved convertible and selecting my new environmentally friendly car," commented Dawn Van Zant. Listeners can submit ideas, suggestions and questions or participate in future interviews and share solutions.
