PR9.NET July 31, 2007 - Bellevue, Wash. - Pharmacy OneSource, Inc., software as a service provider to more than 1,000 hospitals in the United States, announced today that Washington County Hospital has adopted Quantifi, Senti7, ScheduleRx and UnitStock. Washington County Hospital is using Pharmacy OneSource's suite of products to improve pharmacy performance.

"We are very excited about the whole portfolio and the impact it will have upon our workflow," said Christopher Virgilio, Pharm.D., Clinical Coordinator at Washington County Hospital.

Senti7 helps Washington County Hospital by linking their pharmacy, laboratory and medication systems to identify opportunities for pharmacist intervention. Pharmacists will create customized clinical rules for the hospital and avoid risk through early detection of adverse events and drug reactions.

Tied together with Senti7, Quantifi will allow Washington County Hospital to document their clinical interventions, adverse events and adverse drug reactions quickly over the internet or on a handheld computer, collecting crucial event data easily across the entire hospital.

"We are very excited that the Washington County Hospital has chosen Pharmacy OneSource," said Keith Streckenbach, MBA, Executive Vice President of Pharmacy OneSource. "As a portfolio partner, Washington County Hospital multiplies their workflow and patient safety benefits of our software services and provides themselves with the best return on investment."

UnitStock is a documentation and reporting application that will assist Washington County Hospital in meeting the Joint Commission standards for storage of medications in nursing units, clinics, and operating rooms.

Washington County Hospital can easily schedule its pharmacy staff within minutes using ScheduleRx, which features web-based shift changes and vacation requests.
