Well known personalities in the British esoteric scene give around the clock guidance.

PR9.NET July 31, 2007 - Berlin, London - The phones haven't stopped ringing since Questico's esoteric portal opened. Now, those in the UK who are looking for advice can search the portal for an advisor and make contact with them, but many professional esoteric advisors are also contacting Questico to offer their services. Right from the outset, Questico UK has attracted several prominent experts in esotericism: some have already published books or demonstrated their abilities on English TV or are familiar figures in other media, such as Lucy Powell (author of "Spirit and Destiny") or the well known astrologer and author Graham Boston ("Astrology: A Beginner's Guide") who also helped set up the Aquarius Severn Astrology Society.

Questico comes originally from Germany, where it is the leading multimedia company group in TV, internet and print media for services, content management and life advice through astrology, horoscopes and tarot card reading. It began in 2000 as a portal for those seeking advice and expert advisors. The company founders all have long experience in international business, internet and e-commerce. The esoteric market in Europe was already booming by 2004 and with it the number of inquiries in this field received by the advice portal, which gave rise to the specialisation in this area. The service has since been used by millions of customers. In 2006, Questico won a Deloitte Fast 50 award: Questico was among the top 10 fastest growing companies in Germany and received an award for 25th place in Fast 500 Europe. As Sylvius Bardt, spokesperson of the board of Questico AG says, "We've built up the market and professionalised it. We provide a service which is geared to the customer's interests and customer feedback. We also maintain transparency in all areas: real names for advisors and a service which is clear and comprehensibly laid out. If a customer is not satisfied, their money is refunded to them. Our customers very much appreciate this about us: the right conditions and content."

So it was a logical next step to approach the exciting English-speaking world. The UK portal www.questico.co.uk now features many advisors offering astrology and horoscope / tarot and card reading / clairvoyance and psychic readings. "We are always on the lookout for good advisors in order to broaden the field for discerning English customers. In addition, our advisors appreciate the good conditions and job opportunities" says Sylvius Bardt. Questico carries out all promotion and marketing of advisors at no cost to them, the most popular advisors are presented in the next edition of Questico Magazine.
