Stefan Doris and her son, Zogo are two of Africa's 'forgotten refugees'. They escaped from the massacres of their family in Liberia and Sierra Leone during the early 2000s. Despite contracting malaria they made their way to Senegal where they are stateless refugees and have no political status. As such they can earn no income and live a hand-to-mouth existence. Please help re-build their shattered lives by donating to the cause.

PR9.NET September 03, 2007 - United Kingdom, Manchester - Stefan Doris and her son Zogo are just two of the Liberian/Sierra Leonian refugees currently in Dakar, Senegal. They escaped the civil wars in Liberia and Sierra Leone during the early 2000s. Like many of these refugees both Stefan and Zogo contracted malaria whilst escaping through Guinea on her way to the relative safety of Senegal. Yet, as refugees they have no legal status in Senegal and can earn no income there. They are therefore entirely dependent on handouts and live a hand-to-mouth existence. Like most of the refugees Stefan has been sorely abused during the past seven years and believed her entire family to be dead. Her mother and brothers are gone but she has just discovered that her father is alive, but gravely ill in hospital in Freetown, Sierra Leone.

This campaign aims to help re-unite Stefan with her father, gaining safe passage for her to Freetown. Also the aim is to raise sufficient money that her father can have potentially life-saving heart surgery. Donations to this campaign will allow Stefan and Zogo to re-build their lives, to come to the UK and to start afresh with a new life and new horizons. It will get them both professional medical help and will provide them with a new life. Donations above and beyond these requirements will go directly to the Liberian community in Dakar, to give them a safety net as a community and to re-open the English school that the UN used to run and which has now closed.

Your donations will make a real difference to people who have suffered so much already. It will give them new hope and a new life.

About celtnet

Celtnet is a non-profit website whose entire income goes to the 'help Stefan' campaign. Any income over and above that required to run the site goes to the Liberian/Sierra Leonian refugees of Senegal. New tools are constantly being added and the latest is a clickbank ads and marketplace system that helps support the campaign above.
