AutoShipping.com has announced the launch of a new quote system that allows users instant, accurate, real time quotes.

PR9.NET October 27, 2007 - Chandler, Arizona - Today, AutoShipping.com has announced the launch of a new quote system that allows users instant, accurate, real time quotes. "With this self service state-of-the-art instant quote system, users enter the specific details of the vehicle, origin, destination, and dates requested and within second's users receive an accurate price for shipping a vehicle," says Anna Castillo, Director of Marketing. She adds, "the instant quote service is offered in addition to the interactive quote system where users receive up to 7 competing quotes via email."

This service allows users to compare prices and services, and choose the service which best meets their individual needs. In addition to the new quote system, AutoShipping.com has also launched a new, more user friendly version of the site that includes users guides, pre-shipping check lists and articles specifically written to help guide the user to a positive car shipping experience. I appreciate the simplicity of the new site.

"Things are easy to find, and the articles are written in plain English instead of complicated jargon that most people don't understand," writes user Alice Rousay in a recent testimonial.
