New website provides information on treatments that selectively target cancer cells

PR9.NET November 05, 2007 - Fabrizio Taliano MD, Ph.D., senior oncologist and surgeon, is an Italian research scientist, who is bringing a revolution to the field of breast cancer care. Dr. Taliano states in no uncertain terms that any breast cancer treatment that does not carry its anti-cancer substances into the cancer cells in a selectively targeted fashion, particularly when those substances are toxic to normal cells, should be declared illegal, and should be abandoned. Considering that virtually all standard treatments in conventional medicine use non-targeted and highly toxic chemotherapies, Dr. Taliano's statement indicates that the medical establishment is using wrong and harmful protocols in its treatment of breast cancer.

There are several non-toxic protocols, developed by Dr. Taliano, that are being used by a growing number of holistic physicians to replace the standard procedures.

A breast cancer support group, called Women for Breast Cancer Truth, has opened a new website on the internet. The site is dedicated to the lectures, articles and treatment protocols of Dr. Taliano. According to Julia Dwyer Ph.D., director of the group, there is a growing interest in North America about Dr. Taliano's views both among physicians and patients. " In Europe, the new protocols are beginning to replace the standard treatments that are maiming and killing women unnecessarily. In North America, the new approach is splitting the oncological community into two factions. Some oncologists embrace the idea of a more humane and more effective therapy, others resist any change" , she added.

The address of the website is www.breastcancer-cured.com. Dr. Taliano's most famous lectures that have caused an uproar in Europe's oncological circles, can be read at the site. The treatment protocols are described in reports and articles.
