

America's 1st Sustainable Home Show Returns on January 25-27, 2008

Berg Productions, Inc., October 30, 2007

URL: <http://www.pr9.net/business/marketing/6677october.html>

The 3rd Annual Good Earth Home, Garden & Living Show is slated to return to Eugene, Oregon with over 250 exhibitors in eight sustainable product pavilions. Over 40 seminars including National Design Experts to local bee keepers will be offered during the three day event. Exhibit sales are underway for the 2008 event.

PR9.NET October 30, 2007 - USA/Eugene, OR – The 2008 Good Earth Home, Garden & Living Show is scheduled for January 25-27, 2008 at the Lane County Convention Center in Eugene, Oregon.

This award winning three-day event will present eight sustainable product pavilions with over 250 exhibitors creating a sustainable marketplace: Good Green Homes, Good Organic Gardens, ReUse/Recycle, Good Transportation, Sustainable Food/Beverages, Arts and Books, and Good Living/Wellness. The new product pavilion will be focused on Eco-Adventure and Travel which will offer exhibits from the Northwest.

Last year's show had over 50,000 attendees seeking earth-friendly options for living. Attendees will discover over 40 fun and informative seminars featuring national green design experts as well as natural garden experts. The Good Earth Café & Stage will host hourly entertainment including gospel singers to rock bands. Authors will be speaking on hiking, green building, solar, and recycle décor. Book signings will follow.

Eugene, Oregon is not only the Greenest City in North America, but it is also home of the Good Earth Home, Garden & Living Show which was America's Very 1st Sustainable Home & Garden Show. Eugene's large ecologically minded population makes it a strong market to introduce and or test market eco-friendly products, services and advertising materials.

This fun and fresh event presents three days of learning, networking and eco-shopping. Due to popular demand, the Good Earth Chickens will be migrating back over the aisles for their annual people watching in the Oregon. The home pavilion will feature an invasion of more green builders than at the 2007 event.

Admission will be Free with canned food donations for FOOD for Lane County. Parking is free, but attendees are encouraged to use LTD bus, or bike to the Convention Center. All waste will be recycled with the City of Eugene Event Recycling Kit, and Waste Free Oregon.

Those seeking vendor or attendee information about this uniquely green consumer event can visit www.EugeneHomeShow.com - check back in mid-December for the full schedule of speakers.

###

About Berg Productions, Inc.

Berg Productions, Inc. has been a producer of quality home and garden consumer events in Oregon since 1983. We currently produce the three largest home and garden shows in Oregon outside of the Portland market. Our flagship event is the Spring Lane County Home & Garden Show each March. In the fall we produce the Lane County Home Improvement Show in October. In 2006 we launched America's 1st Sustainable Home & Garden Show - the Good Earth Home, Garden & Living Show featuring 250 exhibits, 40 seminars, and tens of thousands of attendees. Berg Productions, Inc. is a family held corporation.

Phone:	541-484-9247
FAX:	541-302-6845
Website:	http://www.EugeneHomeShow.com
E-Mail:	info@EugeneHomeShow.com
Address:	PO Box 1093 Eugene, OR 97440