AXIGEN, the professional mail server vendor, closes yet another partnership agreement on the Italian market, with the Exent company.

PR9.NET December 11, 2007 - Bucharest, Romania - AXIGEN (<http://www.axigen.com>), the professional mail server vendor, announced today the closure of yet another partnership agreement on the Italian market with the Exent company (<http://www.exent.it>).

The Italian company specializes in custom designed software development and in Internet content management systems. Exent is backed by a team of talented designers, programmers and network engineers with comprehensive expertise in information security, electronic commerce, database integration and custom programming.

"We started evaluating AXIGEN due to a strong demand for us to expand Exent business in the communication services field. We thus needed a high-end, reliable messaging solution, and the AXIGEN Mail Server responded to all our requirements perfectly. Also, partnering with a professional company that offers outstanding support services and expertise in carrier class solution development will help increase the quality of all services we currently offer," said Andrea Acito, Exent CEO.

"Through this valuable business relationship, AXIGEN will further expand its presence on the Italian market. We are confident that Exent will support us in our ongoing effort to adapt our innovative messaging solutions to specific requirements of companies operating in Italy. For 2008, we plan to keep developing our distribution network in both Italy and the rest of the world," concluded Oana Bornaz, AXIGEN CEO.

Now at version 5.0.1, the AXIGEN Mail Server runs on several Linux and BSD distributions, on Solaris, on PowerPC and on SPARC architectures, while its WebMail Interface is available in 20 languages, including Italian. AXIGEN signed technology partnerships with Sun Microsystems, RedHat, IBM and Avira and won the ServerWatch 2007 Product Excellence Award for the Communications Server category.
