Exclusive and syndicated literary pieces will be made available with new website launch in mid-January 2008

PR9.NET December 27, 2007 - BRANTFORD - TheraiSaK.com announced today that in January 2008 there will be a new website launch complete with portfolio examples in Literature, Art, Design and Photography. Along with the website launch there will be exclusive and non-exclusive manuscripts/literature, artwork, and photography available to publications for (re)printing and/or (re)publishing and to the general public for personal uses.

"TheraiSaK.com is experiencing a creative growth spurt and we'd like to take our website and services one step further," said TheraiSa K. Fleig, owner of TheraiSaK.com. "In the past our focus has been primarily on custom graphic and web design for independent musicians, in the future however, we hope to expand on our literary contributions and release exclusive as well as syndication style articles and reviews along with original artwork and general photography to the public. We hope publications as well as individuals embrace our new direction and use our literary and artistic services to their advantages."

Current Article Deployments

Many syndicated services and websites have already benefited from TheraiSa K's literary deployments from "how to" articles to DVD movie reviews and opinion pieces. In December, three syndication pieces were offered to sources such as eHow.com and Helium.com and garnished positive feedback from the public viewers. More articles are expected to be released on a monthly basis in the new year.

"This is a first step for us in composing and releasing syndicated-style articles," said TheraiSa K. "We only hope that many more of our articles and content will be syndicated and published in the future."

Article Availability

TheraiSaK.com will have articles and content available for viewing, purchasing and downloading in January 2008 via <http://www.theraisak.com>. The website will also contain TheraiSa's portfolio examples in literature, art, photography and design while also providing a hub for online sales of personal products (such as apparel, furniture, action figures, collectables and more) and information.
