FinditQuick.com has released its new video library which will give potential advertisers new ways to get their products out there.

PR9.NET January 02, 2008 - Niagara Falls, New York - FinditQuick.com, Inc. has just released its newly designed Quick Shots page. Quick Shots is the video library created and managed by FinditQuick.com. With this new design comes the option for advertisers to place ads within various videos in a non-invasive way. Advertisers will receive greater exposure to viewers and increase the traffic to their sites with this new feature.

"We try to be a better company every day. Today, we are improving the options for our Advertisers," said Ron Halleen, CEO of FinditQuick.com, Inc. This established Internet company, created in March 2000, is already successful with other forms of advertising including text and banner ads. The video ads will appear as text ads and will go to the highest bidder on that clip. FinditQuick.com, Inc. already deals with thousands of companies, both advertisers and affiliates, from all over the world. This new development will drive that number upward, increasing revenue for the company and any advertisers utilizing the program.

Similar to other established video websites, Quick Shots is a place where people can upload original movies or short video clips to share with other people. Quick Shots does not allow anything of a sexual or graphic nature to be viewed but still recommends that viewers be at least 18 years of age.

This new outlet for advertising shows nothing but promise for any company trying to stand out among its competitors.

FinditQuick.com, Inc., has been in business for almost eight years. While the office is small, the ambitious, drive and success of this company is huge. Their network of advertisers, affiliates and users are growing every day. They continue to look for ways to grow and expand.
